Describe the event you are going to: *

This event is one of the largest conferences in my field. The conference takes place every three years. In 2016, more than 800 presentations were given and the conference included "Sample," "Test" and "Example" sessions, all of which are closely related to my topic of research. Specifically, I hope to attend talks by John Anderson on Sample Topic, Carol Clark on Sample Topic, and Mary Carmona on Sample Topic. These talks are directly related to my specific research. I submitted a paper to this conference titled "Sample Paper," and I was accepted to give an oral presentation in "Sample" session.

What do you hope to learn or achieve by going to this event? *

In attending this conference, I have three specific goals:
1. Share my research. I presented my research at another conference last year. This was a tremendous boon to my research, as I gained a great number of new insights from seasoned professionals in the field. I hope to share my work with a wider audience to receive more feedback and collaborate with colleagues.
2. Learn about new research. I would like to attend the workshop titled "Sample" to learn about the new mechanism that is related to my research. Additionally, there are talks by speakers that directly impact my work.
3. Network. I would like meet and collaborate with other attendees. I would like to receive feedback on my research and help others by giving feedback on their research.
